

Carlisle Fire Department Captain Brian Jones, holding the thermal imaging camera and second Assistant Chief Dave Wolfe, holding the gas monitor, purchased with a Wal-Mart Corporation grant and community donations.

Carlisle FD uses grant to buy new equipment

In May, the Carlisle Fire Department took ownership of a new Scott Safety Eagle Attack thermal imaging camera with charging system and a Scott Safety Protégé portable multigas monitor.

Captain Brian Jones applied for a Community Service Grant through the Wal-Mart Corporation and submitted a 500-word essay detailing some of the fire department history, the community, and what the CFD would like to purchase and why.

The purchase of the camera and gas monitor wouldn't have been possible without the Wal-Mart grant and donations from the community.

Since May, the camera and the gas monitor have been used on numerous occasions and have proven to be very beneficial in identifying potential safety hazards.
